101 Square Meals
Easy recipes for everyday life
Foreword

We in safefood are delighted to introduce 101+ Square Meals Cookbook to homes and community groups across Northern Ireland. 101+ Square Meals is a wonderful and valuable resource for individuals and families in the home and also for those delivering home management educational programmes in the community. The presentation and layout is innovative and appeals to new as well as seasoned cooks.

This book is designed to address two considerations; budget and nutrition.

The cost of healthy eating is an important issue for us all. The healthy eating guidelines in Northern Ireland are based on the Eatwell Plate and encourage us to eat a wide variety of foods. Eating a healthy, balanced diet is an important part of maintaining good health, and can help you feel your best. Research has shown that on average we are eating too much food, not taking enough fruit and vegetables and overeating high fat, high calorie foods. This cookbook provides clear and simple-to-follow recipes and supports the philosophy of affordable good nutrition.

101+ Square Meals was originally developed in the Republic of Ireland by Limerick Money and Budgeting Service and Health Promotion (Health Service Executive) with support from PAUL Partnership, Limerick VEC and the National Adult Literacy Agency to provide easy-to-prepare, low budget and nutritious meals. This version has been adapted for Northern Ireland in collaboration with the Public Health Agency and the WHSCT Community Food and Nutrition Team.

Happy and healthy cooking for you and your families,

Dr. Cliodhna Foley-Nolan

A GUIDE TO HEALTHY EATING

Eating well is important for all of us. It can help us to feel good, look our best and stay at a healthy weight as well as reduce our risk of serious illness. To eat a balanced diet you need to combine several different types of foods in the right amounts so your body gets all the nutrients it needs while maintaining a healthy weight.
Eat lots of fruit and veg
It’s recommended that we eat at least five portions of different types of fruit and veg a day.

Base your meals on starchy foods
Starchy foods include potatoes, cereals, pasta, rice and bread. Choose wholegrain varieties when you can: they contain more fibre, and can make you feel fuller for longer.

Choose some milk and dairy foods
Milk and dairy products such as cheese and yoghurt are great sources of protein and calcium. To make healthier choices, go for lower-fat or semi-skimmed milk and dairy foods.

Eat more fish
Fish is a good source of protein and contains many vitamins and minerals. Aim for at least two portions a week, including at least one portion of oily fish. Oily fish is high in omega-3 fats, which may help prevent heart disease.

Cut down on foods and drinks that are high in fat and sugar
We all need some fat in our diet. However, it is important to pay attention to the type and amount of fat we’re eating. Saturated fats can contribute to raised cholesterol and are found in many foods, such as fatty meat, pies, butter, cream, pastries and biscuits so try to eat fewer of these. Food labels help identify how much saturated fat and sugar a product contains.

Drink plenty of fluid
We need to drink about 1.2 litres of fluid (about 6-8 cups or glasses) every day to stop us getting dehydrated. Try to avoid sugary squashes, soft drinks and fizzy minerals which are high in added sugars and calories. These can also cause tooth decay and gum disease.

Vegetable oils for cooking and baking
When buying vegetable oils to use during cooking, olive, sunflower, corn, safflower or rapeseed oil are high in unsaturates but use them sparingly. When baking, standard margarine can be replaced by a margarine that is high in unsaturates, but remember that it still contains the same amount of fat and calories.

Healthy cooking methods
Steaming, grilling and baking are all healthy cooking methods. Remember that meat can be sealed and browned on a pan using just a tablespoon of vegetable oil.

Eat less salt
Food should be tasted before salt is added to it. Why not experiment with flavouring your food with garlic, pepper, herbs or spices instead of salt. Even if you don’t add salt, you may still be eating too much since three-quarters of the salt we eat is already in the food we buy. Check the food label—more than 1.5g of salt per 100g means that the food is high in salt. Adults and children over 11 should eat no more than 6g of salt a day.

Don’t skip breakfast
A healthy breakfast is an important part of a balanced diet and provides some of the vitamins and minerals we need for good health.

Some of the recipes in this book may contain nuts
If you or anyone you are cooking for are allergic to nuts, do not use nuts in the recipe.
SAFETY: Whole nuts are unsuitable for children under five years because of risk of choking.

FOOD SAFETY IN THE KITCHEN

Good food safety means knowing where bacteria are likely to thrive and not giving them a chance to get comfortable. Stay safe by following these simple guidelines on the how, when and where of food storage. Regular cleaning of worktops, chopping boards and any surfaces that come into contact is just as important. It helps prevent the spread of bacteria.
When storing food
Put refrigerated foods and frozen foods into your fridge or freezer as soon as possible after buying, taking care not to overload your fridge or freezer.

Do not store raw and cooked foods on the same shelf. Place cooked and ready-to-eat foods on a shelf higher than uncooked foods to prevent juices from raw meat coming into contact with other food.

Freezing
When putting food in the freezer, ensure it placed in a properly sealed container and labeled with its’ date, weight and food type. Check these labels later to ensure food has not been stored for longer than recommended by the manufacturer.

The freezer should be maintained at a temperature of -18°C or less, check that the freezer in in good working order. Never put hot food or food that has already been frozen into the freezer.

Thawing
Frozen foods should be defrosted in the fridge, never use hot water or other artificial means to thaw frozen food. Always make sure that frozen foods are completely thawed especially chicken before cooking (unless instructions specifically state “cook from frozen” e.g. frozen vegetables). The freezer should be defrosted on a regular basis to prevent the build up of ice.

General kitchen hygiene
All kitchen cloths should be washed frequently and replaced regularly. Use carefully, remembering where they last were used. Tea towels should not be used as hand towels or wipe cloths. Surfaces and utensils should be cleaned with hot water and detergent before being used.

Keep family pets outside the kitchen. Their food should be kept separate from family food and different utensils and dishes should be used to feed them.

All rubbish should be stored in a rubbish bag or bin and sealed tightly when full. Waste should always be kept covered and rubbish bags should be removed daily to an outdoor bin.

Vegetable, Chicken and Beef Stock

Many of the recipes in this book include stock. Stock cubes are often high in salt so try to make your own. It’s easy to make and you can plan ahead, make double the amount and keep it for another time. Freshly made stock can be stored in the fridge for up to 3 days and in the freezer for up to 1 month. If you are in a rush and need to use a stock cube instead of fresh stock, choose one that is low in salt.

Vegetable Stock
1½ pints of water, 1 parsnip, 1 onion, 3 carrots, 3 celery stalks

Method
Combine all the vegetables and water in a pot; bring to a boil. Partially cover, reduce heat, and simmer 1 hour. Strain into a large bowl and discard solids. Cover and chill in the fridge or freeze for use at a later date.

Chicken Stock
1¼ pints or 1l of water, chicken wings or chicken carcass, 1 onion

Method
Add a couple of chicken wings or chicken carcass and an onion to 1¼ pts or 1 litre of boiling water and boil for 1 hour. Allow to stand and then skim off the fat from the surface. Strain into a large bowl and discard the solids. Cover and chill in the fridge or freeze for use at a later date. Remove any fat that rises to the top before using or freezing.

Beef Stock
1¾ pints or 1l of water, 1kg of beef bones, 1 onion

Method
Place the beef bones and the onion in pot and add 1¾ pts or 1 litre of boiling water and boil for 1 hour. Allow to stand and then skim off the fat from the surface. Strain into a large bowl and discard the solids. Cover and chill in the fridge or freeze for use at a later date.
